Knox Asks Enforced Draft Bill

Secretary of Navy Warns
if England Loses,
U. S. Will Be Left
Friendless

'I Pray to God'

Knox Prays Disaster
Won't Occur; Raps
'Soft Soap'

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—Secretary Knox urged the House military committee today to approve compulsory military training legislation because if England should be defeated "we will be left without a friend in the world."

Repeatedly asserting that the United States faced the most serious crisis in history, the navy secretary asserted:

"In the event that England goes down—and I pray to God that that don't happen—we'll be left without a friend in the world."

However, Knox said, in event of a British defeat, there would not be an immediate attack on the United States but rather a German effort to "calm our fears" and to "interrupt preparedness measures we are taking."

Knox recalled that on July 2 he had said a 300,000-man army would be adequate with a two-ocean navy.

"That was said before the collapse of France," he added. "What I may have said about a land force then does not apply."

He testified that "even if we weren't confronted with imminent menace, the principle underlying this legislation is sound."

"Faced with a very grave crisis as we are—and it is impossible to exaggerate the gravity of that crisis," he declared, "we must supply trained men if we are going to use these instruments we are buying at such a great cost."

Senators Hold Fate

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—Ten senators, thus far non-committal, were reported today to hold the fate of opposition efforts to compel a substantial modification of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

The show-down will come on the compromise proposal of Senator Maloney (D., Conn.) to defer consideration until it was proven that voluntary enlistments could not produce the necessary army manpower by January 1.

At the opening of the fourth day of the draft bill debate, administration leaders disclosed that, with the exception of the ten uncommitted legislators, the Senate was almost evenly divided on the Maloney proposal.

Once the Maloney proposal has been rejected or accepted, it was predicted that the conscription bill would win final Senate approval, inasmuch as the Maloney compromise provides that registration go forward pending the showing made by a further trial of voluntary enlistments.

Peak Strength

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader, told reporters he expected Burke-Wadsworth bill opponents to reach their peak strength on that ballot.

While the Senate disputed the draft, the House opened consideration of Senate-approved legislation empowering the President to call out the National Guard and the regular army reservists for a year's active training. Leaders hoped to complete action in two days.

Delay, however, materialized for another item related to the defense program—the proposed excess profits tax. Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the House ways and means committee said today that because of technical difficulties in drafting the tax provisions, the bill would not be ready for the House floor before Monday, he said.

Air Raids Pave Way for 'Zero Hour'

The "zero hour" for Germany's attempted invasion of England was approaching, military observers in Berlin and Switzerland said, as waves of Nazi planes rained bombs on southern Britain. Shaded area shows zone of heaviest fighting. The British naval base at Portsmouth was a special objective of German attack.

T.V.A. Is Becoming Vital Center in Nation's Economy

Cotton Fields Are Being
Plowed Up for War
Material Factories;
Tempo Changes

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 14 (AP)—A world at war is reshaping the economic scenery in the Tennessee Valley which suddenly has found itself in the limelight as a strategic region in the nation's defense plans.

Cotton fields are being plowed up for factories. New industries are spending millions in building. The tempo of life has changed for thousands of farmers who are leaving the plow for the machine.

The industrialization of the south, under the drum-beats of war on other continents has been quickened beyond the realization of most of the inhabitants.

Industry has at last turned its eyes on the valley's rich resources in labor, materials, electric power, rail and water transportation facilities, temperature, climate and inland security in event of possible future invasion by enemy forces.

The valley, included in the region which President Roosevelt once termed "the nation's No. 1 economic problem," is in the midst of a dramatic period spawned by the turn of world events.

David E. Lilienthal, Tennessee Valley Authority director, after a tour of inspection which carried him to key defense industries and projects in the valley, said he

Hart Confers With Marine Officer Who Is to Oppose Tokyo Demands

Shanghai, Aug. 14 (AP)—Admiral Thomas C. Hart, United States Asiatic fleet commander, arrived by submarine today from Tsingtao and conferred with Col. De Witt Peck of the U. S. Marines Corps who is expected to oppose Japanese demands for control of the British sector in the international settlement at a foreign defense council meeting tomorrow. The British are withdrawing their troops from China.

A compromise whereby the American Marines would take over certain important downtown areas from the British, while the Japanese would take over British sectors north of Soochow creek and along extra-settlement roads in the so-called "Badlands" district was regarded by some observers as possible.

Admiral Hart was not expected to attend the meeting of foreign

New York, Aug. 14 (AP)—While police—after an all-night vigil over a suspected "bomb" capsule found in the 70-story RCA building—were carrying the device to sea to be dropped overboard in deep water today, it was disclosed that the tube was a harmless gadget used by air-conditioning engineers.

Elizabethton, Tenn., Aug. 14 (AP)—A flash flood swept out of the hills here last night, killed one or more persons and drove scores in panic to trees and rooftops.

Fed by 24-hour rains, the Watauga river surged up 20 feet from nightfall to midnight; and while only one body had been recovered early today, Highway Patrolman Claude Buckles expressed fear several more had been trapped in their beds.

There were reports the bodies of two men had been removed from the stream but this could not be verified.

Sturgeon Pool Bridge Planned Central Hudson Prepares Plans to Facilitate Access to Large Plant on West Bank of Wallkill

The Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. is preparing plans for a new bridge over the Wallkill at Sturgeon Pool to facilitate access to its plant on the west bank of the Wallkill at that point.

Arthur L. Colligan, district manager, said this morning that the new bridge would be of steel construction, built to accommodate the heavy machinery which the company has to move at various times, and would be approximately 200 feet in length. He could not say just when construction work would get under way, but said plans are being prepared.

The bridge will cross the Wallkill below the Sturgeon Pool dam and entry will be had from the existing road near the top of the dam, over the old powder roads, which will be rebuilt and over a new road to the proposed crossing.

This latest move on the part of the Central Hudson is part of a program of development and improvement which has been under way for some time. Part of the program has been the development of a fine recreation center for use of the company employees, which has been placed in charge of a caretaker, whose duty it is to see that everything is kept in order and watch over the company property at that point generally.

More particularly, however, the erection of the bridge, giving ac-

Milan Focal Point for Anglo Raids

Turin and Alessandra
Among Cities Struck;
Leaflets Say Italy
Pawn of Nazis

Rome, Aug. 14 (AP)—British warplanes, which a communique said came from the direction of Switzerland, rained bombs and leaflets early today on rich industrial centers in northern Italy, killing 22 civilians and wounding more than 50 others.

The heaviest attack apparently was launched on the busy city of Milan, where 30 explosive and incendiary bombs were said to have landed in a residential section. The Milan death toll was put at 12 and the wounded at 44.

Also bombed were Turin, Alessandra, Torona, and Augusta, near Syracuse.

The Italian high command said the raiders failed to damage any military objectives or industrial establishments.

The leaflets asked the Italians why they consented to fight beside their "hereditary enemy," Germany, said they were being made the pawns of Hitler and warned them that the terrors of war are now "at your door."

In eastern Africa, British Somaliland forces were reported strongly resisting Italian attacks in the vicinity of Adaleh, south of the seaport of Berbera. The high command declared, however, that the Italian drive to reach Berbera was continuing.

The newspaper Piccolo reported Italian planes had been bombing British fortifications and bases in British Somaliland, had set oil depots on fire and machinegunned truck columns.

Other sections of the press said Germany's object in beginning the air offensive against Britain was to wipe out the Royal Air Force so the British will be powerless to prevent the Germans from landing troops on the island.

"The battle will continue until the British air fleet is destroyed,"

Upstate Primary Contests Develop In Congress Race

Three-Way Battle Is Seen in at Least Two Areas
in Petitions Filed
With Bureau

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—More than a dozen upstate primary election contests for nominations to Congress with three-way battles in at least two districts were indicated today by designating petitions filed with the state election bureau.

Deadline on petitions designating candidates for Congress and the state Senate was still recording those mailed before that time. Friday is the last day for declarations and August 20 the limit on filing vacancies thus caused.

Meantime, petitions filed with the board of elections in New York city showed at least two primary battles for Congress. John J. O'Connor, lone victim of the Democratic "purge," in 1938, is contesting the Democratic nomination in the 16th district with Rep. James H. Fay, his successor. O'Connor also filed for the Republican nomination.

American Destiny Ticket

In the 18th district of New York city, Joseph E. McWilliams, candidate on the American destiny ticket, also sought the Republican nomination against the regular Republican designee, Raymond S. Fanning.

Two Senate contests were reported by the state bureau which receives petitions only from districts larger than a county. Both were within the American Labor party.

In the 37th district, Willard Riker, RD 1, Oswego, and John J. Nickel, Watertown, were pitted for the ALP nomination to succeed

Prosecution Meets Likely Setback

Justice Department Says
There's Little Chance of
Hatch Law Arrests

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP)—Justice Department officials indicated today in guarded private comment that there was little likelihood of prosecution for purchasers of the Democratic 1940 campaign book in the event that the Democratic national committee decides to sell the volume despite the Hatch Act.

One official said that prosecution under a law which could impose a maximum $5,000 fine or five years in prison on a person who merely bought a 25-cent campaign book was "an impossible situation."

Another, asked what might be done if 100,000 persons bought the books, recalled the observation of an English lawyer many years ago that "you can't jail a whole people."

Willkie Agrees With Landon About Democrats' Need of Fraudulent Votes

Colorado Springs, Aug. 14 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie nodded agreement as Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee, told a press conference yesterday:

"President Roosevelt's re-election depends to a great extent upon how many fraudulent votes can be cast by the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, the Hague machine in Jersey City and Boss Flynn's machine in the Bronx."

"I believe it is the policy of the administration to rely on these machines to cast as many fraudulent votes as possible."

Willkie, the Republicans 1940 nominee, said he agreed thoroughly. Landon was his guest.

Willkie settled down today to complete the acceptance address he will deliver Saturday in his home town, Elwood, Ind.

A major section of the speech is expected to deal with military conscription. While rumors have cir-

300 Planes Fight Series of Furious Battles in Murk

Spectators Declare That Anglo Planes
Break Germany's Strategy; Nazis
Turn Attention to Midlands
Where Industries Center

(By The Associated Press)

Attacking in great waves, Nazi bombers set huge fires today in the area of Dover—channel "gateway" for a possible land invasion. Dover is 22 miles across the channel from the German-held French coast.

DNB, the official Nazi news agency, said the fighting was still raging at 6 p. m. (11 a. m., E. S. T.), with an estimated 25 British planes shot down and only five German planes destroyed.

Nazi raiders turned the south coast of England into a howling battlefield in a series of fights involving 300 planes today—the fourth straight day of blitzkrieg—after British bombers raiding before dawn had carried the war to the rooftops of her axis enemies.

Flying high out of sight, German Heinkels penetrated British coast defenses and bombed the industrial midlands while swarms of Messerschmitt fighters engaged British Spitfires and Hurricane pursuit planes at lower altitudes.

Spectators said the British quickly broke up the German strategy of "flying circle" attack, diving into their midst and chasing them into individual dogfights.

First reports said at least 10 Nazi planes were shot down.

A Berlin dispatch meanwhile said "inquiry in competent quarters elicited no denial" of reports that Germany was using long-range big berths to shell the English coast from emplacements across the channel.

Striking back, Britain sent her airmen on a 1,600-mile round trip across the Alps to rain death on Italian cities while another R. A. F. flight threw at 47-minute air raid scare into residents of Berlin.

The Caprini factory at Milan and the Fiat plant in Turin, two of Italy's major aircraft works, were badly damaged, the British declared.

Despite murky weather, Nazi warplanes attacked Britain's great industrial midlands during the night and returned again early this afternoon for a fierce, large-scale attack on the already bomb-scarred south coast.

RAF defense squadrons clashed with the raiders in dogfights involving 150 planes, and spectators on the shore saw at least four planes crash into the sea in flames.

Anti-aircraft guns hammered at the Nazi craft, which attacked barrage balloons and sank a channel lightship with a six-plane salvo of 12 bombs.

Other German raiders swarmed along the coast in numbers approaching the 500 which stormed Britain's first-line coastal defenses yesterday. About 300 planes fought all along the south coast.

Destroyers in Action

British destroyers also went into action in the heightening struggle.

The admiralty reported two British craft engaged six armed German trawlers and three E-boats (torpedo-carrying speedboats) and scored hits on three ships before the Germans fled behind a smokescreen.

A Nazi trawler and one E-boat were believed sunk, the admiralty said.

Coincidentally, the British air ministry reported 140 German planes were "definitely destroyed" and 140 others "probably destroyed" in the last two days of intensive raiding.

Raid Near Berlin

Berlin reported that British raiders penetrated to the region of Potsdam, 20 miles west of Berlin, but were turned back by anti-aircraft fire before they could reach the capital.

Air-raid warnings sent Berlin residents bounding from bed to the safety of air-raid shelters, however, and residents of the capital's suburbs said they heard the sound of distant gun-fire.

On edge for an imminently expected land invasion, Britons experienced a mild alarm over reports that 11 German parachutists landed in the midlands during the night and that seven of them were captured.

Aviation experts discounted the report and expressed belief the 'chutes belonged to German aviators shot down by RAF fighters.

Death of Woman Is Being Studied

Wife of Alaskan Marshal Disappears From Great Lakes Steamer

Cleveland, Aug. 14. (AP)—The mysterious death of Mrs. Benjamin Moeze, wife of a U. S. marshal at Nome, Alaska, who disappeared from a Great Lakes steamer and lay unidentified in a morgue for two weeks was the subject of an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The 53-year-old woman was en route to visit relatives at Brookfield Center, Conn., before becoming a nurse at Bellevue Hospital in New York. Her body was washed ashore at Geneva-on-the-Lake, 30 miles east of here July 31, but was not identified until last night because the Lake Erie steamer Seandee did not learn until then that it had lost a passenger two weeks ago.

Steamship officials said she had occupied a little-used upper deck stateroom which had not been entered since then. When they found her effects in the stateroom yesterday they reported to Cleveland authorities and her brother, Frank Elliott, of Cleveland identified the clothing and jewelry found on the body.

Authorities started an investigation to determine whether Mrs. Moeze had been robbed and slain after Elliott reported she carried "a large amount" of cash and wore three valuable diamond rings as she embarked on the Seandee July 29 for a Cleveland-to-Buffalo cruise.

Coroner Charles Webster of Ashtabula county, where the body was buried, said it bore severe bruises apparently not received in the water. The palms of both hands were covered with grease, he added.

Mrs. Moeze was the daughter of the late Henry Wood Elliott, naturalized and a leading advocate of the United States' purchase and colonization of Alaska. Born in California, she studied nursing at Leland Stanford and as a young woman went to Alaska to become a visiting nurse.

City Might Build Storm Sewer Chain In Roosevelt Park

street had been graded as a W.P.A. project, but since there was no drainage facilities such as a sewer when it rained part of the street became a lake.

Mayor Heiselman said that Roosevelt Park area was "a nice building development and the city authorities were doing all they could to stimulate building."

Building John Street
Assistant Superintendent Max O'Connell said that the work of rebuilding John street, between Clinton avenue and Fair street, was started Tuesday morning by the street department and that with favorable weather the work should be completed in about two weeks.

A black top, similar to that laid on Clinton avenue, between Main and North Front streets, will be used on John street.

Locust Avenue Plan
City Engineer James G. Norton in reply to questions said that plans had been prepared for building a new entrance to Locust avenue, part of which had been wiped out by a landslide some months ago. The new entrance would be by way of the Fourth ward instead of the Fifth ward, and would be constructed from Fourth avenue and Ulster street.

Deeds for the necessary rights of way had been prepared and were in the hands of Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin.

To Trim Trees
Property owners along Roosevelt avenue called attention to the low hanging limbs of trees and asked that they be trimmed. The request was referred to Mr. O'Connell as was the question of trimming trees on Pearl street, near St. Joseph's Convent.

A lease for another year of Loughran Park was submitted to the board by James F. Loughran, owner of the property. The usual nominal consideration of a dollar covered the use of this park property which is donated to the city's use by Mr. Loughran.

Need Retaining Walls
City Engineer Norton when questioned by the board with regard to building retaining walls on Tubby street which had been rebuilt as a WPA project said that there was difficulty in getting the WPA to build such walls.

Mayor Heiselman said that when the street was graded banks were left standing from three to four feet high in front of the houses in some places, and that there were several houses that were liable to slide out into the street unless retaining walls were built.

Wading Pool Project
Mayor Heiselman asked the city engineer as to the status of the proposed wading pool planned for Block Park. It developed that when plans for the pool were submitted the WPA engineer who inspected the plans objected and believed piling should be built under the pool.

"Now Engineer White of the WPA wants the bottom of the pool reinforced," said Mr. Norton.

The mayor said that he had been informed that the WPA program for improvements in Hasbrouck and Forsyth Parks was about ready to start.

Mr. Norton said that blue prints and plans had already been filed with the local WPA.

To Start Downs Street
City Engineer Norton said that work was progressing on the rebuilding of Clinton avenue as a WPA project, and that it was shortly planned to start the work of rebuilding Downs street.

Refutes Charges
Mayor Heiselman refuted the charges made at the August meeting of the common council by Aldermen Donnaruma and Houghland in which they stated that the public works board had purchased the machinery authorized by the aldermen before the authorization had been granted by the council.

This was not true, the mayor said. "As a matter of fact, some of the machinery ordered has not been delivered yet," the mayor said.

Assistant Superintendent O'Connell submitted a written report of the work done by the department during July which included the flushing and cleaning of the city's sewers and work done on a number of streets which had been scarified, rolled and oiled.

City Engineer Norton also submitted a report of work done by the WPA during July.

Police Bury Iron Tube Out in Sea

explosive fluid found last night in an entrance of the 70-story RCA building in Rockefeller Center was carried to sea today in a shockproof bed of down, to be dropped overboard in deep water.

The decision to bury the suspected capsule at sea was reached after an all-night conference of police and fire department officials, who called on U. S. Army experts for advice.

The container—six inches long and two inches in diameter—was made of black iron pipe, the ends sealed with threaded caps.

It was found at 9:45 p. m., at the entrance of the loading platform of the RCA building, which houses the National Broadcasting Company offices and studios.

Nine officers were aboard the boat when it set out for Scotland Lightship, conveyed by a second police launch—in case of accident.

Iron & Power common led the list of 15 most active stocks and dropped 1 1/2 points in turnover of 28,600 shares, while the preferred, also on the active list, lost 5 1/2. Steel common lost 3 1/2, Bethlehem 4 1/2 and Republic 1 1/2, all on the most active list. Chrysler was down 4 1/2 and General Motors 2 1/2. One stock, Butter Copper, made a new high for the year and ten stocks made new lows for 1940.

Commodities joined in the downward movement and the Dow-Jones index lost 49 point for the day to close at 50.04, a new low for the year and lowest point reached since August 31, 1939, when it stood at 47.84. Rubber was the only exception on the list, being two to five points higher. Wheat, after dropping as much as two cents a bushel, rebounded and losses at the close were 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents a bushel. Cotton dropped in sympathy with securities and closed off five to eight points. Sugar was outstandingly weak, September world contract selling at 0.65 cent, a new record low; the raw market remained steady at 2.65 cents a pound. Hide futures broke as much as half a cent a pound.

Most sections of the bond market were under pressure, speculative and convertible issues displaying the largest declines. Obligations of Australia, Canada and other countries identified with the Allied cause weakened in the foreign list. German and Italian issues were relatively steady in quiet dealings.

Abroad the London market was firm, showing favorable reaction to air battle reports and averages were up for the day.

The National Defense Advisory Commission has outlined a plan for delivery of 1,300 to 1,400 planes a month to the British. They have asked for 3,000. First deliveries on the program would probably begin late next month.

International Paper & Power yesterday reported earnings for the quarter ended June 30 of $3.938,859, or $1.52 a share on common, despite deduction of $2,000,000 for a reserve against excess profits tax. This compares with net of $7,739 in the same period last year and is the second highest three months net since interim reports began.

American Woolen Co. announced advances of between 12 1/2 and 18 1/2 cents a pound on some lines of tropical worsteds and gabardines for the summer of 1941. Defense requirements are keeping the mills busy and it is expected full operations will be at one of the highest levels in the past 20 years. Upwards of 15,000,000 yards of woolen cloths already have been ordered by the War Department, for delivery in the next few months.

'Y' Day Camp Closed on Friday

Camp Preumaker Is Closed
After Successful Season

The second year of the Y. M. C. A's Day Camp at Camp Preumaker came to a pleasant conclusion of six weeks of fun and frolic last Friday.

One of the youngsters wandered into the director's office and was eager to tell of a bit of heavy thinking he had just been doing. Seems as though when his mother called him on this last morning of camp he had rolled over and in that happy state of half awake and half asleep he had mused over the past six weeks. He said that the first big thing that came to his mind was the swimming to the raft that so many of the boys had accomplished in the first week or two of camp. Then his mind slid to the first overnight when the rain had drenched everything but the boys' spirits. Then the overlook hike and the fun he had had exploring the unfinished hotel on the top of the mountain and the joy of an ice cream treat on the way home.

Then another overnight crossed his mind and was followed quickly by the famous water hike during which 40 odd pair of shoes became sudden collections of soggy leather, then quickly he passed on to the North Lake trip with its hike around the lake and up Jacob's Ladder and another ice cream treat on the way home. Next was the spaghetti and meat ball dinner that "Wes" promised the gang. Only "Wes" turned 12 pounds of perfectly good spaghetti into a pot of gurgling glue, and meat balls and sauce had to make the supper.

The final week had seen much action in camp. The trip to the State Museum had been the climax of the season but to that had been added still another bit of fun—a visit to the Submarine S49 anchored in the Albany harbor. Our camper's thoughts were rudely interrupted by his impatient mother as she pulled off his blankets and routed him to breakfast.

As he left the office our minds too drifted back over six happy weeks. We gratefully thought of the fact that no one had been injured during the season and that each boy looked so brown and so healthy. We thought of the great number of boys who had taken the final bit of courage into their hands and had actually begun to swim. We thought of the overnight hikes he had undertaken and of the pleasant visits of the parents on those evenings. We beamed at the recollection of the Sons of American Legion Band coming to camp to play a concert for all one evening and of the feed they provided the campers with. As the day drew to its close a happy venture and a healthy summer took its place in the mist of things done.

Senator Isaac B. Mitchell, La Fargeville, incumbent, redesignated by Republicans, William J. Nolan, Niagara Falls, and Harry R. Timkey, Lockport, sought the ALP nomination for the place of Senator William Brewley, Lockport, Republican redesignated.

The ALP filed for at least ten Senate posts and 14 congressional seats.

Other contests for Congress nomination:

26th District—Republican: Hamilton Fish, Garrison incumbent, Edward J. Bowen, Poughkeepsie, Democratic; Hardy Steinhilber, Salt Point, and Bowen, American Labor party; Con Miller, Poughkeepsie, Howard Bunting, Cuddebackville.

Pirates Take Valuable Cargo From Steamer

Shanghai, Aug. 14 (AP)—A story of piracy and ransom off the Chinese coast was reported today by the British coastal steamer Shen Hwa, halted by Junks swarming with searovers and looted of a $250,000 cargo.

Officers said pirates boarded the ship off the coast of Fukien Province August 7. A number of Fukien natives were carried off for ransom. There were no accidental passengers.

The vessel was halted on the very day she was released by Japanese warships which had detained her two days on charges of entering a "forbidden zone" along the China coast.

Prosecution Meets Likely Setback

"anti-politics" act became effective July 1.

Flynn said the book would not be sold, but Republicans assailed the publication as a violation of the Hatch law. Senator Hatch (D., N. M.), the law's author, said the book would constitute an "evasion" of the law and demanded publication be abandoned.

The law specifically prohibits the purchase of anything by anyone when the proceeds would directly or indirectly benefit a candidate for a federal elective office or a political group supporting such a candidate.

Attorney General Jackson, however, has told Senator Hatch that failure of the law to apply equally to the seller was a weakness. He suggested that the act be amended to include the vendor as well as the buyer "if we are to be successful in going before juries."

Dutchess County Fair Opens Tuesday, August 27

Premiums totaling $12,000, are being offered for the 96th annual Dutchess County Fair, which opens Tuesday, August 27, at Springbrook Park, Rhinebeck, and continues through Friday, August 30—day and night. The premiums are being offered in 17 different departments ranging from the horse show, horse races, flower show, Grange exhibits to the unsurpassed exhibits of livestock and farm products.

Tuesday, the opening day, is Children's Day, when all the children are admitted free to the grounds and grandstand. No horse racing is scheduled for the opening day in order that the race track and pavilion in front of the grandstand may be utilized solely for the entertainment of the youngsters.

The Horse and Pony Show will open on Wednesday morning and continue through to Thursday afternoon, when the President's Cup, donated by President Roosevelt, will be awarded to the best horse of the show.

The entertainment will be given in front of the grandstand. The acts include a paramount revue the DeCaros, a sextette of graceful and skillful athletes performing in dangerous situations without the use of safety devices; Smith's diving ponies and Jumbo; the first elephant in history to star in a major Broadway production, while Bobby Whalin and partner will provide blending comedy with expert maneuvering of unicycles and bicycles.

The New Departure Band of Bristol, Conn., will again provide concerts before afternoon and evening entertainments, and will accompany the grandstand acts.

Cramer Makes Try To Give Skunk Cry

Tear Gas Used to Dislodge Animal at Factory

Humming softly to himself "There Will Be Tears in Your Eyes," Motorcycle Officer Wesley Cramer discharged a tear gas bomb under the Powell paperbox factory on Pine Grove avenue this morning in an effort to dislodge a skunk that had made its home under the building.

The skunk decided to move in on Tuesday, much to the discomfort of the factory employees. It was not known whether the skunk was a "mister" or a "miss" and the question of whether there was a family of little skunks was also unknown.

As it was decided that the best plan to cause the animal to seek another home was to use tear gas the police were called on for assistance and the tear gas gun in police headquarters was taken from the rack and loaded with a bomb and placed in the hands of Officer Cramer who has used the gun with great success on previous occasions.

"Just give enough time for the gas to seep throughout the foundation and that skunk will move and move promptly," observed Officer Cramer.

Chapter 44

Her Excellent Brain

"I BELIEVE that the murders were done without Felicia's knowledge," I said. "At least about Sandra. I saw her face when she learned of it, and she was shocked."

"But why did she worm her way in here three months in advance? It was a carefully thought-out plan, and here was the brain that conceived it, in my opinion."

"And I shared her room last night! Gerald, she wasn't the one who attacked me. Who was the man?"

"The impostor at Fort Michigan. I had my eye on him from the first but Sandra threw me off. That poor girl—she poor fool! Did she think she could pit herself against—"

"Gerald—tell me at once!"

"You asked me two questions. Who was the body in the car? And who was the man who attacked you? The answer is the same. Only not the same, if you follow me."

"Either tell me or go away. If that's your idea of soothing a sick person try it on the state hospital for the insane. Maybe they'll appreciate you. I don't."

"Kay, my dear, forgive me. Only it seems so obvious. I kept forgetting your head is probably hazy yet. It was the chaplain, of course."

I stared at him.

"I guess my head is hazy," I admitted. "That doesn't seem to make sense."

"Think it over a bit and you'll get it. Chaplain Henry, the chaplain Sandra had known in Texas, was ordered to Fort Michigan. He wrote to the adjutant. You were present in the mess hall when Felicia told about the letter. She probably thought if she didn't the adjutant would, so it was good strategy. The letter asked, you remember, about rooms, and also detailed his program of action, including his plans for purchasing a new Ford in Chicago and driving it here."

"He even asked where he should stop for dinner. Dollars to crullers, the saying goes. She wrote back and recommended Fieldstone Inn. I say again that hers was the mind behind this coup, and I have plenty of reason to think so. Her husband, after that near escape from the elevated station, was in need of a hide-out. She knew of his susceptibility to poison oak, and there was enough of it around the post to give her the idea. The chaplain delivered himself into her hands."

"The husband—call him Bridewell for the sake of convenience, though it's probably not his name—lay in wait at the inn. You were with me the night I tried to find someone who had seen him. I haven't been able to prove it, yet. But I know how it was worked. It's the only possible way. An acquaintance struck up, a casual mention of Fort Michigan, and the offer of a lift. Once in the car, events probably took place much as described later, but with important omissions. The real chaplain was murdered, by chloroform, carbon monoxide, or some similar method which would leave no trace after the body was burned."

"Felicia had been to Chicago that day. It was the following day, after I arrived, that she told you she had to go back as they had sent her the wrong girdle. I'll wager she really bought that girdle, really exchanged it the next day. It gave her all the excuse she needed to make two trips to Chicago on consecutive days."

"The first night she met Bridewell by prearrangement on some deserted road. The body of the chaplain was transferred to the luggage compartment of her car. Bridewell drove the chaplain's car back to Chicago, checked all his luggage at the La Salle Street Station and drove back to the place where the car was later found abandoned. Felicia picked him up there, drove him to the edge of the reservation, where he stripped—"

Two Reasons

"TWO reasons, Felicia's excellent but misguided brain again, I'm sure. First reason, the chaplain's clothes would not fit him. Second reason, he made himself a laughing stock, and there is nothing quite so disarming to suspicion as that. Oh yes, one more reason—the poison oak. That was the most essential part of the disguise. He had been seen, and his fingerprints were known. And while Felicia had made careful inquiries and found that no one on the post knew the real chaplain, there was always the chance of some accidental meeting—like Sandra's. The poison oak was meant to take care of that. I think he must have rolled in the stuff. Captain Jones had admitted that he was much too concerned about his wife to observe the phenomenal extent of the irritation. Otherwise his suspicions might have been roused."

"Of course the chaplain kept the brief case in order to prove his identity," I said. I couldn't seem to get over calling him the chaplain. "What was Felicia doing all this time?"

"Going quietly about her business. She drove home, locked her car in the garage and waited for the wrong girdle to arrive."

"I rode as far as the Post Exchange with her that afternoon," I recalled, shivering a little. "Gerald, you don't mean—"

"The body was unquestionably in the back of the car. Was she nervous, not anxious for your company?"

"I suggested going in with her and she put me off. She went to see the chaplain, too, in the hospital. She was going to buy him some underwear."

"Very cool. She made use of everything. Even Immerman. I think he really inspired her. Of course she stole his second insignia and planted it in the burned car—what? Did you say something?"

"Nothing—go on." I was remembering what the orderly had said the night before that rang a bell in my brain. That his uniform blouse always hung in the kitchen when he wore a white coat to wait on table."

The Authentic Touch

"SHE made people laugh at the chaplain's pants, and they couldn't take the chaplain seriously. Same way with the girdle. Always the authentic touch. How could anyone question the predicament of a woman caught out in public clothed only in her girdle?"

"She drove that car out beyond the target range herself and ditched it, first having arranged the corpse in the driver's seat—remember, he was a small man, and Felicia no weakling. A little kerosene spilled here and there, a candle sheltered from draft that would take an hour or more to burn down until it could ignite the soaked cushions, or oil-soaked rugs—"

"She was scared white when she got back to the club."

"I don't doubt it. Suppose she had been seen—suppose the candle had gone out. They must have used carbon monoxide on the chaplain, in case the fire failed and the car was discovered too soon. Or she could always have gone back, in the small hours when everyone was asleep and made certain the second time."

"Gerald, who was Felicia? And why should she plan two awful crimes like that? Not just for money. I can't believe anyone would do such things just for money. The theft of a child—and the cold-blooded murder of a good man—"

"The worst crimes are for money," Gerald said with quiet bitterness. "And they are usually committed by people who have convinced themselves that they have a grudge against the world. Like Sandra. You read that part of her document, didn't you? The rest of it—the incriminating part—told how they fooled her, too. At least, the chaplain did; she never knew Felicia was in it. She simply knew Bridewell was an impostor; but when she confronted him with her knowledge he claimed to be a friend of the real chaplain. The story they hatched was that the chaplain had been refused leave to go to the bedside of a dying relative and that he, Bridewell, had agreed to attempt the harmless deception."

"And Sandra believed that?"

"So she said; but perhaps she didn't, really. At any rate, she saw a chance of turning a penny and hadn't the wit to make the obvious deduction when the car was burned, or to realize that she was playing with dynamite. The nearest she came to the truth was to think he might be a spy."

"But that was later. After Ivan was killed, she didn't really care what happened. Ivan had been in Hollywood and, penniless, had hitch-hiked or bummed his way as far as Chicago. He came to her for money—probably not the first she had given him. When you and Julia interrupted them on the barge—yes, Colonel Penant told me all that—they made an appointment to meet there later after the party broke up. That was why Sandra was so long in giving the alarm."

"She waited until Mimi was asleep, borrowed her car and drove back out to the beach, expecting to find Ivan waiting for her there. He was there, all right, but she didn't find him. He had been killed by Bridewell while you girls were absent from the barge. And it was undoubtedly meant to look like an accident—"

Berkshire Concerts
Close This Week

Much interest has been shown this summer by city and county residents in the Berkshire Symphonic Festivals at Tanglewood, Mass., in the Berkshires and many are making plans to attend the final series this week which opens Thursday.

Tanglewood, home of the festival is ready, to handle its biggest crowd in history. An outstanding feature of the week will be the Bach "B Minor Mass" Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The Bach program will open at the earlier hour because of the necessity of dividing the program into two parts. There will be an intermission of an hour starting at 8:30 to permit the audience to enjoy supper on the grounds.

On Friday, starting at 6 p. m. comes the gala benefit program being presented for Allied Relief by the orchestra with the cooperation of the Festival.

Dorothy Maynor, negro soprano, whose star has soared since her appearance last summer at Dr. Koussevitzky's Tanglewood picnic, will be heard by the great festival audience Saturday evening at 8:30.

The festival will close Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with the program of Haydn, Sibelius and Brahms.

Stretch Family Income By Simple Budget Plan

Have Money for What You Want
"Get the things I want? Why, I can't even pay for the 'musts,'" people say. "There's always a bill left over, a pet project put off. If only I had more money!" Budget — is the answer. Planned spending not only keeps runaway expenses in line but it actually seems to stretch your income.

Those bills that look like mountains are just the result of carelessness in spending and planning. By impulsive marketing you may have run up a grocer's bill that's 20 per cent over the amount your budget recommends. For a family of three on $125 a month $10 a week is ample for food. Learning to use the cheaper cuts of meat and taking advantage of "specials" can be fun. $8 a month ($96 a year) to spend on your dearest desires.

As for unexpected dentist's bills, repairs to the house—they need never prove a burden. Your budget provides a fund for these "Large Occasional Expense," enables you to pay taxes and other big bills without a qualm.

Make your money go farther with a budget. Our 32-page booklet tells how to apportion the service.

LADLING PUNCH A SERVICE RATHER THAN AN HONOR

Emily Post Warns Hostess not to Offend Guest

One does not sit to ladle punch as one sits to pour tea or chocolate, but it would be proper to have some one stand beside the table to ladle it and hand glasses. Therefore, to the question asked by a reader, "Is it correct to ask a friend to sit by a punch bowl and help guests at a reception?" I might add that ladling punch would not be an honor so much as a chore, since it is just a quick service duty, and not the friendly one of encouraging other guests to sit down beside you for a while and talk.

Sherbet With the Meat Course

Dear Mrs. Post: When sherbet is served with the meat course, should it be eaten with a spoon or the dinner fork? If the answer is spoon, is this left in the glass until one has finished the sherbet?

Answer: It is eaten with a teaspoon, and the spoon is then laid on the saucer or the plate under the glass. Never to leave a spoon in any glass except a tall ice-tea or coffee glass, or an ice-cream soda glass, is one of the primary rules of table manners.

The Wedding Dress

Dear Mrs. Post: What material would be particularly suitable for a late summer or early autumn wedding dress?

Answer: Heavy faille or satin, either stiff or "draping." In fact, any material that is not sheer and suggestive of midsummer.

The Daughter's College Friends

Dear Mrs. Post: This will be my daughter's first year at the state university, and since we have a roomy house in the country, only ten miles from the capital, I anticipate having many of her friends come home with her to spend week-ends. (1) When she invites these girls, is it necessary for me to write to their mothers asking permission? (2) Also, when having these young women in my house, am I served at table before one of them?

Answer: (1) On no account. Young women in college are not children. (2) For this same reason that they are young women, which ever one happens to sit on your right should be served first. Whether the dish is then passed around the table to the right, thus serving you last, or whether it is passed to the left, serving you second, is for you to decide. Since they are all much younger than you, at least every other course should be proffered to you second. Furthermore, you might seat a different girl on your right at each meal—taking them in rotation—rather than give any one of them greater honor than the others. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Table Rules of Importance." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Novelist Will Be Main Attraction At Elwyn Theatre

Woodstock, Aug. 14.—One of the season's biggest attractions insofar as the importance of any one personality is concerned, will be offered at Robert Elwyn's Playhouse at the opening of "Shadow and Substance," starring Sinclair Lewis, noted novelist tomorrow night.

Mr. Lewis, who has been with the Elwyn players for more than a week, has been working literally like a trapper to give his best to the play. He has been hard at work as the rest of the Elwyn cast for this offering and his policy is always to give his utmost to any undertaking.

Another prominent part in the play will be handled by Marcella Powers, an actress in her early teens, who according to those who have seen her, has much to give to the stage. She will remain over for next week's play, Mr. Elwyn announced today.

During his stay in the art colony Mr. Lewis has met a number of the resident artists and writers and seems to have found the place generally to his liking.

Many have wondered whether or not Mr. Lewis will carry away any impressions which may later be used in a book. On this the author has said nothing definite, but he has indicated that all thoughts which strike him as worth while are jotted in a note book for future reference and it therefore seems a safe speculation that he has obtained some worthwhile notes in such a colorful community as Woodstock.

The play "Shadow and Substance" deals with the deeper philosophy of religion and the players hope to make it one of the best offerings of the season.

Statistics Show That Feller Will Win About 29

Bob Says if He Starts 12 He Should Win 8; Three Games Ahead of 1939

Cleveland, Aug. 14—Albert, my scratch paper please.

This is the story of how many games Bob Feller is going to win this season.

Cleveland's ace fireballer, who notched his 20th victory Monday in pitching the Indians into first place won't predict. He says mathematics and percentages will supply the answer.

About the pennant race is more definite. He believes the American League chase a Cleveland-Detroit affair, with Boston an outside possibility; that the Indians will win and meet Cincinnati in an all-Ohio world series; and that the New York Yankees are through for the season.

Nothing the Redskins have 45 more games to play, Feller hazarded this.

"If I start 12 games, I ought to win eight of them."

"So much depends on how the teams happens to be hitting on the days I pitch," Bob added. "My arm feels fine. My most serious physical trouble of the season came yesterday—I had a stiff neck because I forgot to turn off the air-conditioning on the train from St. Louis."

"In this stretch drive relief assignments will affect the number of games I start. I can't go out on a limb."

All right, Albert, more paper and the records.

Feller now has only six defeats against 20 victories.

On this date last year his won-and-loss record was 17-6. He finished with 24-9. On that basis he should win 27.

In 1938 he showed 12-6 on August 13 and finished with 17-11. That pace would mean 25.

If Bob continues his present rate of winning and starts 12 more games—and open dates in September make the dozen figure a pretty reliable guess—he would win 9½ games. That would make 29½.

So if Feller wants to let Mathematics answer for him, the 1940 pace figures say he'll be just an eyelash from the much-coveted 30-victory mark when the curtain goes down.

Fair Street Wins

Fair Street's Federation softball team, with Bill Newkirk, Sr., on the hill, won the first game of the playoff series Monday evening at the armory diamond against the Presbyterians. The final score was 6 to 3.

Opposing Newkirk on the mound was Harold "Chicken" Smith who hurled good ball. Bill Bush maced one of Smith's pitchers for a homer with one on to help Fair Street win.

Tonight the second game will be played at the armory diamond. The score:

Fair Street.....6

Reese Is Sparkplug Of Brooklyn's Dodgers

'Pee-Wee' Rated as One of Best Ninth Inning Clutch Hitters; Good Fielder

Schoolboyish personality man of Brooklyn's 1940 Dodgers—Harold "Pee-Wee" Reese—is booming for the title of No. 1 freshman star of the National League on the strength of his shortstop sensationalism and his will-o'-the-wisp flitting along the baselines when the Dodgers are batting and the ball is hot.

But on top of his fielding and base-running fireworks, the slim straw-haired stripling, who was swinging for New Covenant Presbyterian in the Louisville Church League three years ago, has picked a pungent propensity that makes him shape up as a material for headlines in years to come—he's a last-inning-clutch home run hitter!

Pee-Wee pairs with Dolph Camilli in the Brooklyn infield as a plain and fancy sending-receiving combination on the 57 varieties of throws a shortstop has to hurl in a hurry and a first-baseman has to grab in a leakless basket to make the play hold tight.

Pee-Wee pairs with Dolph likewise as clutch-hitter. Dolph is the man, you know, who gets more RBI per hit every year than and other runner-driver in the major leagues. In both of his years with Brooklyn Dolph has belonged to the select century class of tally-knockers-inners. The other boys who bat 100 runs across the dish in the National League are high-stepping 300 hitters. Dolph has never hit 300 for Brooklyn.

The National League last year had four century men in the run-driving department. Three of them were Johnny Mize, Frank McCormick and Joe Medwick, who were one-two-three for the league batting championship. The fourth was Camilli, batting .290!

In 1938, Dolph's lowest year in big league batting averages, .251, he drove in exactly 100 runs. He hits them when they count. Now here comes Reese, the last-ditch

Indians' Margin Is Now 2 Full Games; Reds Halt Bucs; Bill Terry Chased

(By The Associated Press)

The Detroit Tigers, desperately trying to stay in the thick of the American League pennant fight, apparently are no stronger than Charley Gehring—and their peerless second sacker is riding the bench at the moment.

The pennant hopes of the Bengals are built around their infield, and the infield, for more years than the oldest native can recall has been built around Gehring.

But Charley's aging legs "ain't what they used to be." As a result the Tigers find themselves two full games back of the Cleveland Indians, and with a record of four straight losses. The second straight setback to the Indians came yesterday by 6-5 as young Dutch Meyer, substituting for Gehring, booted an infield smash in the ninth that allowed the winning run to score.

However, the cheering of some 16,128 Cleveland fans was drowned somewhat by the ominous rumble of the New York Yankees, who looked like the old gang again as they smashed the Boston Red Sox by 9-1 and 19-8. Marius Russo pitched five hit ball to win the first one and Joe DiMaggio showed younger brother Dominic of the Sox who was who in the family by smashing out a total of six hits in the two games, including a pair of homers in the afterpiece, which was called by darkness in the seventh.

The Chicago White Sox, thanks to Taft Wright's ninth inning double that scored Luke Appling with the winning run, beat the Browns, 4-3 in spite of a revamped Brown lineup and Vern Kennedy's serious bid for his 10th victory of the year.

The Athletics bunched their hits effectively in the first and fifth innings—scoring three runs each time—to down the Senators 6-3 in a night game. Dutch Leonard was touched for 13 blows, one more than Johnny Babeich gave up.

Bids Come Through

The Cincinnati Reds managed to stave off the peppy Pittsburgh Pirates, largely through the efforts of Frank McCormick and the wildness of the Buc hurlers. The Reds won 4-3 when McCormick opened the ninth with a homer and then helped break the tie in the tenth with a single that put Linsu Froy (who had walked on third where he scored on Ival Goodman's right field fly).

The Giants turned in the day's only "triple"—when they lost a game to the Boston Bees by 4-1, saw Danning lose the batting lead to the Bees' Carvel Rowell and heard Manager Bill Terry lose a decision to umpire George Magerkurth—and got chased for the third time in his eight years as manager. Jim Tobin got credit for the win, his second straight and the Bees' 11th in their last 13 starts.

The St. Louis Cardinals crept to within a half game of the fifth place Cubs when they beat Chicago 5-1 behind Clyde Shoun's seven hit hurling. The loss was the Cubs' fifth in six games and came on the wings of 11 blows that Larry French gave up.

The Dodgers and Phils were rained out with Brooklyn leading 3-0 at the end of the first inning.

added, however, that he expected House approval by the end of next week.

During the Senate session today a vote was scheduled on the proposal of Senator Lee (D., Okla.) to increase the army's $21-a-month basic pay of $30, to bring it into line with the navy scale. Little opposition was anticipated. The name of Wendell Willkie was injected into the draft discussion last night by Senator Johnson (D., Colo.), who declared in a pencilled statement that the Republican presidential nominee held the fate of compulsory conscription "in the hollow of his hand."

A conscription foe, Johnson said a Willkie pronouncement against the draft in his acceptance speech next Saturday would make the subject a "dead issue."

"If Willkie straddles the issue," he added, "Congress will follow suit by adopting some such straddling amendment as the Maloney proposal."

The army high command meanwhile disclosed to the House military committee that delay in adopting conscription had forced postponement of the general staff's plans to have 900,000 men under arms this October.

Dollar Day Draws Its Crowds

Hundreds of people flocked to Wall street this morning to take advantage of the Dollar Day bargains offered by the merchants in the downtown business section. Above is a view of a section of one of the stores after the doors were opened for the customers. Below one of the store fronts is shown just before the doors opened.

Defense Draft or Political Draft?

The following editorial appeared in The Binghamton Press of Tuesday, August 13:

SOMETHING LIKE A PATTERN
The price of a vote in the forthcoming presidential election will be new and high. From the early August road, it would appear that the price will be the highest ever paid, for a vote in any American presidential election.

And that price, apparently, is to be individual immunity of "the faithful" from armed service in defense of and for the security of America.

The thing which was at first nebulous and seemed quite fantastic is now becoming obvious. That huge army of jobless Americans and children of jobless Americans represented by W.P.A., N.Y.A., C.C.C. and the host of politically faithful henchmen, administrators, executives, and sub-executives who comprise the official framework of those alphabetical agencies, is to be insured and in part assured in advance that most of it will not be called into the armed forces of the United States, draft or no draft.

A deliberate, carefully planned and purposeful program has been laid out, the real objective of which is to put as many of the enrolled personnel of the alphabetical agencies into categories where they will be reasonably certified as being essential to national defense, and so not liable to draft, for armed service as soldiers.

Of this general plan, the enrollment of W.P.A. in the vocational defense training courses is the most obvious, and the beginning. Otherwise, why all the heat on the part of the political W.P.A. bosses? Otherwise, why the furious and almost frantic resentment at the disclosure of the tail-twisting processes they have exerted on the state educational department?

Otherwise, why give preference in the vocational courses to unemployed and unskilled jobless, over employed men with trades? Certainly nothing of the sort would be done if the only purpose were to turn out the greatest number of most efficient craftsmen in national defense industry within the shortest possible time.

If that were the objective, then men who already have basic knowledge of the trades and skills would be given the preference—as they should be—because obviously they could be prepared not only most quickly but most efficiently for the best and most efficient immediate service to industry in national defense.

No, that isn't the objective. The objective is to put as many of the less efficient, less ambitious, jobless, into categories where they may be so certified as essential to noncombatant activity at W.P.A. wages plus, instead of having to carry a gun at $21 or $30 a month, and learn military discipline.

Naturally there is going to be some gratitude on the part of some of the appointed hundreds of thousands, and even the millions who, under this plan, and the extension of this plan, will be exempt from active military service. Naturally they are going to be inclined to vote for the administration which is going out of its way to see that they are safe from conscription.

And what parents of voting age will be ungrateful enough to vote against an administration which is just about ready to put the boys of N.Y.A. into the same category of exemption through "training in mechanical and other lines" which will make them "essential to national defense"?

The advisers of Mr. Roosevelt have not forgotten the wave of practical political gratitude from the mothers and fathers of this country who re-elected Woodrow Wilson because "he kept us out of war," meaning that he kept their boys out of war—just three months before those boys were no longer safe for democracy or anything else.

Already the moves in this direction are becoming apparent. N.Y.A. will be the next of the faithful alphabetical agencies to be put into industrial training essential to national defense and so, for the large part, taken out of possible call for military service. It is no secret that there is already fabricated and ready in Washington a similar plan for C.C.C. This includes the training of C.C.C. boys in motor maintenance and other activities of a sort which will automatically eliminate them from the active service provisions of whatever military conscription bill may be passed, and give them right of line in an ever-expanding government defense payroll and private payrolls controlled by government contract awards.

Nobody has given the go-ahead on that C.C.C. plan, so far. The administration is feeling its way in this amazing scheme of insuring the votes of millions through the process of sheer human gratitude at being saved from military service.

There simply isn't any sense in getting hot and bothered about it. This is what is going to happen and already is happening with plan and objective now clearly defined, no matter how many denials there may be.

We suspect that the denials will be sharp and thunderous, because nobody likes to be caught at such a trick. Nobody likes to be successfully accused of playing politics with the very safety of the nation. Even totalitarian politicians realize that there might be more Americans who would resent such a trick than there might be Americans who would appreciate it and vote "right" out of gratitude.

So vehement, unqualified, and blistering denials plus some shrill abuse are in order. Yet this prophecy stands. Paste it in your hat or on the kitchen wall, and watch it develop to realization. Whatever compulsory military training bill is passed will probably contain provisions coordinated to the almost atrocious ultimate political objective of this daring raid on American confidence and American traditions.

Anglo Planes Raid Italy and Kill 22

one correspondent wrote from a German air base.

The text of today's Italian communiqué:

"Bitter fighting is still under way in British Somaliland east of Adaleh. Our maneuvers, although strongly opposed, continue. "At 1 a. m. this morning enemy planes coming from Switzerland carried out a raid on northern Italy, dropping bombs and leaflets. "At Milan about 30 explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped. All landing in an inhabited area. No military objectives were hit. The dead, all civilians, numbered 12 and the wounded 44.

"At Turin about 15 bombs were dropped, causing no damage to military or industrial establishments. One person was reported killed and eight wounded.

"Alessandra and Tortona also were bombed. Nine were reported killed at Alessandra, including three firefighters who ran to carry out their work. Several were reported wounded.

"A bombardment of Augusta, near Syracuse, where four bombs were dropped caused neither casualties nor damage. "An enemy torpedo plane was shot down by our navy anti-aircraft artillery. The crew, composed of an officer and a flier was captured."

Flash Flood Takes Life in Tennessee And Routs Scores

rescue work, said Mrs. Bob Shell, 54-year-old mother of seven children was the only known victim. She was trapped in an automobile with her husband and 83-year-old mother when they fled their engulfed home in the Rio Vista suburban area beside the river. Shell saved the older woman.

Home of 300 Persons

The area inundated was the home of 200 to 300 persons, most of them employees of two large rayon mills which are the hub of this town of 10,000. Five or six houses were carried away.

After the water began receding here, flood warnings were issued for Kingsport on the Holston river 40 miles from Elizabethton and some 1,200 persons living on Long Island opposite the city were hastily evacuated.

Nearly all east Tennessee and North Carolina mountain streams bulged from their banks after downpours which were the wake of a hurricane that smashed the South Carolina-Georgia coast Sunday.

Floods in western North Carolina wrought unestimated property damage to industries and dwellings, interrupted rail and motor traffic and drowned at least one person.

City Manager P. M. Burdette of Asheville, N. C., said that city's 51,000 residents "faced a real crisis" unless repairs could be made within 36 hours to three large water mains feeding the two city reservoirs.

Frank Nacke, 20, of Denver, Colo., drowned when a boat plunged over a dam at Lake Eden into the Swannanoa river.

Thousands of summer tourists were marooned at dozens of resorts when landslides halted east, west and north-bound traffic over the Southern Railway and high water washed away bridges and covered highways in numerous areas.

The Swannanoa and French broad rivers, converging at Asheville, swept out of their banks, forcing hundreds of residents from their homes.

Heavy rains sent streams rising rapidly in the Piedmont section of South Carolina from Augusta, Ga., to the North Carolina line. Many highways were closed to traffic.
